Before reading these kinds of books do your own research on these mental illnesses. This book stated sociopath feel remorse. I would have to disagree with that. Almost every article online will state that psychopath and sociopath both lack empathy and that's what they both have in common. Sociopaths without the lack "empathy" trait would simply be a misguided individual that makes poor decisions. This is what makes psychopath, sociopath, and narcissist dangerous. They all lack empathy and remorse regardless of what they do. Sociopaths doesn't have empathy for no one but themselves. They only care about their personal gain regardless of why they hurt. Narcissist, sociopath, and psychopath are simply cousins they all come from the same family they are very similar when it comes to exploiting others and having no remorse. The only difference you'll find is mainly how someone can become or develop those disorder, that's the difference I found.

I've always loved learning about the soul and psychology of man. These books I often read, because I am very interested in how occur some mental illness, but also how to be treated by them. This book is very well written. It is useful for those who are professionally engaged in the human psyche, but also for those who want to know more about the human and their behavior. The book, which is really worth reading because it is full of useful and interesting information. All recommendations!

Good book that explains the different personality types and the diseases underneath each personality. I love reading books like this because it makes you understand more about those who are suffering from the disease. Knowing more about what's happening to them helps me relate to them more and appropriately react and reach out to them. It's quite long but you can use this book as reference for the other diseases. All in all it's a great read.
